GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip — Israeli troops shot and killed five armed Palestinians and a 9-year-old boy in separate incidents near a Jewish settlement, while a Palestinian suicide bomber blew up a fast food restaurant in a Mediterranean resort town, killing a 15-year-old Israeli girl.

The violence Tuesday — in all 11 Palestinians and an Israeli died in several incidents — came as Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon left Washington after talks with President Bush and Congressional leaders.

Bush would round out his consultations with Middle East leaders today with the Saudi foreign minister, after which he is expected to announce how he intends to proceed regarding a Palestinian state.

The process may begin with a transitional or temporary state, Secretary of State Colin Powell said Wednesday in an interview with al-Hayat, a London-based Arabic newspaper.

White House spokesman Ari Fleischer responded cautiously to reports of Powell's remarks. He said Bush was still consulting Middle East leaders.

"The president is still listening and if he has further thoughts he'll inform people," Fleischer said.

Just before midnight Tuesday, troops fired on seven armed Palestinians who approached the road leading to the Jewish settlement of Netzarim in Gaza, killing four, the army said. There was no exchange of fire, but the army said it found explosives and assault rifles on the bodies. Israel Radio reported a fifth attacker later died of his wounds.

An army commander in the area, Col. Yoel Strick, told Israel Radio that the attack was unusual due to the large number of attackers and their use of military techniques in approaching the area.

In a joint statement, a number of Palestinian militias in Gaza took responsibility for the attack and said five of their fighters were killed.

Earlier Tuesday a 9-year-old Palestinian Hussein Mitwi was killed in his home, a thatched hut, in what his mother said was unprovoked Israeli shooting. An Israeli army watchtower is about 200 yards from the hut, which is part of a Bedouin encampment.

The army said it was looking into the allegations. In an earlier statement, the army said troops near Netzarim came under heavy fire from a nearby Palestinian police post and returned fire.

SALT LAKE CITY — More than a week after 14-year-old Elizabeth Smart was apparently kidnapped from her bedroom at gunpoint, police on Wednesday said they want to talk to a man they think may have information about teen's disappearance.

Bret Michael Edmunds, a 26-year-old transient, was identified through his license plate number, which a milkman had spotted and reported to police, authorities said.

"We don't think he's a suspect at this point," Salt Lake City Police Sgt. Fred Louis said. Edmunds was being sought on outstanding warrants on charges of fraud and assault on a police officer.

Edmunds is probably living in a 1997 green Saturn with Utah license plate number 266XJH, Louis said.

The milkman, Charlie Miller, said Friday that he saw the car around 7 a.m. June 3, two days before the abduction. It drove slowly up and down the Smarts' street, which ends in a cul-de-sac. He said the man followed him up another cul-de-sac street in the neighborhood. That's when he took note of the car and the Utah license plate.

A statement signed by Ed Smart, Elizabeth's father, says the family has looked at Edmunds' photograph and doesn't recognize him. He said, however, that he has total faith in the investigation and remains confident that Elizabeth will be found alive.

Tom Smart was staying at home with family on Wednesday and wasn't paying attention to the news, he said.

"I don't care what's on TV right now, unless it's somebody bringing this little girl home," he said.

Police say they think Edmunds may still be in the area.

"If he was in the area he may have seen something, so we want

Studio shoots for rededication

By Joy Engebretsen

"Lights, camera, action!" is not solely a Hollywood phrase. It's also heard at The LDS Motion Picture Studio in Provo.

After 42 years of operation and a fire in 1960, the studio has undergone extensive rebuilding. The new, improved studio will be rededicated today at 3 p.m.

"With all the remodeling that has been done we want to rededicate," said Sharon Beaty, production manager for the studio.

Elder Jeffery R. Holland, chairman of the Audiovisual Committee for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, will give the dedicatory prayer, Beaty said.

Other officials will also give presentations, including President Merrill J. Bateman; Lyle E. Shamo, managing director of the audiovisual department; and Elder Dale E. Miller, audiovisual executive director for the church and a member of the Quorum of the Seventy.

Attendance to the dedication is by invitation only, but there will be tours of the facility open to the public today from 5 to 7 p.m.

"We're an in-house production company for the LDS church and we do just about all of the work for the church departments," said Merrill Dimick, director of the studio.

"Right now we're working on two films, one for the Cumorah Visitors' Center and one for the Kirtland Visitors' Center, he said. "We're also doing some public relations spots for BYU."

"The video shows the many impressive aspects of the university," said Brenya Smith, a BYU tour guide.

"Our guests almost always comment about how much they enjoyed it," she said.

Dimick said the biggest production by the studio is the movie, "Testament: Of One Fold and One Shepherd," showing at the Joseph Smith Memorial Building in Salt Lake City.

"We've also done a lot of church education pieces for the seminaries," he said. "We've done four series, one on the Book of Mormon, one on the Doctrine and Covenants, one on the New Testament and one on the Old Testament."

Motion pictures are not the only projects that have been produced at the studio.

The murals for the Nauvoo Temple were painted on one of the stages.

"The artists for the murals had to have some place big enough, warm enough, and with the proper lighting to paint," Dimick said. "It was not a studio project, it was a convenient place for the artists to work."

Peter Walker, a resident of Salt Lake, went to the studio to view the murals in their final stages before they were shipped to Nauvoo.

"The paintings were incredible," he said.

"It was unique because it represented a different type of art," Walker said.

Torrential rains spark deadly flooding

BEIJING — Flooding and mudslides caused by torrential rains have killed at least 178 people in western China and wrecked bridges and power stations, officials said Wednesday.

About 152 people were reported dead and at least 266 missing after the weekend rains in the Shaanxi province, disaster officials said.

At least 24 people have been reported dead in the neighboring province of Sichuan. Thirteen people were missing and 9,820 were homeless.

The rain swept through western China from Saturday to Monday. Thunderstorms were expected in the Sichuan region for the next two days, while cloudy skies were forecast through the weekend in Xi'an.

In Shaanxi, where 80,000 houses were destroyed or badly damaged, the Chinese military has been called in to help with rescue work.

The flooding washed out 13 bridges and 20 miles of highways and railway lines, as well as wrecking 29 hydroelectric stations, she said.

Judge refuses to kill Microsoft lawsuit

WASHINGTON — A federal judge refused Wednesday to throw out a lawsuit by nine states accusing Microsoft Corp. of antitrust violations.

Microsoft had asked for a dismissal, saying the states could not show specific harm to their citizens and lacked authority to seek national penalties.

"The court concludes that Microsoft's motion is without merit and must be denied," said U.S. District Judge Colleen Kollar-Kotelly.

She agreed with the states' argument that an appeals court already considered whether they have such authority, and did not question it.

Before her ruling, the judge asked the Justice Department for its opinion. Department lawyers agreed that the states should bring their case.

The department, which made its own far more lenient settlement with Microsoft last year, maintained its opposition to the nine states' call for strict penalties. Kollar-Kotelly has yet to rule on whether to grant the states' request for those penalties.

Former Zions exec claims defamation

SALT LAKE CITY — Former Zions Bancorp. executive Dale Moroni Gibbons is suing police and prosecutors for $6 million following his arrest on drug possession and child endangerment charges.

On Tuesday, Gibbons sued 21 people for defamation and other claims arising from his June 21, 2001, arrest and prosecution on the three third-degree felony charges.

Prosecutors last week dismissed the child endangerment charge. The other charges — possession of a controlled substance and dealing in harmful material to a minor — are scheduled for trial June 18.

Gibbons, 42, resigned from his $2.1 million a year position as Zions' chief financial officer shortly after his arrest. The lawsuit blames the resignation on the "media frenzy created by defendants' statements to the press."

Gibbons said he lost $5.35 million in stock options, benefits and other incentives when he left Zions. The suit also asks for at least $500,000 in legal fees, $100,000 for the devaluation of his home and punitive damages to be determined at trial.

New department to target terrorism

WASHINGTON — Homeland Security Director Tom Ridge met privately Wednesday with lawmakers on the House floor, fielding questions and objections to the President Bush's plan for combining 22 agencies into a new Cabinet-level department for defending America against terrorists.

At the time, the president was signing legislation allocating $4.3 billion to protect Americans and their food and water from biological warfare.

"We're under attack; that's just the way it is," Bush told the first meeting of his Homeland Security Advisory Council.

Ridge told the advisory council that, given the turf battles built into any government restructuring, five or six months was a realistic goal for getting the new department up and running.

Ridge warned the group that terrorism is now a "permanent condition" for Americans that won't disappear even if Osama bin Laden and his al-Qaida network are destroyed. "There will be successors," he said.

Net joins ranks of basic needs

Associated Press

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. — The homes built by Habitat for Humanity do not include dishwashers or garbage disposals. Those are considered luxuries.

But computers are a different matter.

The organization that builds affordable homes for the poor has launched a $1 million pilot program with three technology companies to put free computers and Internet access into all its homes in the Winston-Salem area.

It may expand the effort nationwide.

"Habitat builds houses, but what we're really trying to do is change lives," said Kay Lord, executive director of the Habitat affiliate in Winston-Salem and surrounding Forsyth County. "A computer is a basic need, just like a refrigerator, particularly if you're a young person going to school."

Habitat announced Wednesday that the 100 homes it built before 2000 also will receive computers and printers through another company, which it did not name. AOL Time Warner will provide free Internet access.

AOL Time Warner also will pay for a two-year study by Wake Forest University to examine the computers' effect on poor families. If the results are as positive as Habitat and the companies expect, the program will probably be expanded nationwide.

The study will examine whether children's grades have improved and whether their love of learning has increased, too.

The anecdotal evidence from children in the 38 homes that already have with computers is clear, said Sonja Murray, Habitat's director of development: The children feel better about themselves.

"Now they're no different from anybody else in class," she said. "They not only can turn in typed, not handwritten, papers, but they can include computer-generated graphs and charts."

The state requires students to pass a computer literacy test to graduate from high school.

Habitat also is providing computer training for the families.

Mary Brunson, who moved with her two teenage sons into a Habitat home in 1998, was the first of the pre-2000 Habitat homeowners to get a computer.

When she began Habitat's required computer classes, she did not even know how to turn on a computer. Now, she said, she can use the mouse, go to the pull-down menu and "click-click two times."

"Mom, that's double-click," Brunson's oldest son, Chris, 15, said with a hint of embarrassment.

Brunson, 47, who has a factory job, hopes to use the computer to find a better job.

Her sons look forward to not having to go to the library or their neighbor's house to do homework. They also want to create

Students with Federal Stafford student loans will see an almost 2 percent decrease in interest rates starting July 1.

The rate will be 3.46 percent, as opposed to the 2001 rate of 5.39 percent, said Jill Welling, a UHEAA loan officer.

Welling said the expected savings for Utah students with Stafford loans will be $8 million with the interest rate drop.

The interest rate changes every year, and over the past few years, have steadily decreased. The state of the economy makes loans difficult to pay off, and lower interest rates can help students make payments more easily, Willing said.

From left, BYU students Kendall Thomas, Sarah Ratliff and Michelle Schofield prepare for "The Liars." The play will run Friday and Saturday in the Varsity Theatre.

Comedy constructed with a creative twist is set to captivate the college audience this weekend as "The Liars" takes stage at the Varsity Theatre.

"This is a comedy, and people will laugh a lot, but when they leave they will also be compelled to think a lot," said Richard Salgado, 23, a senior from Santa Monica, Calif., majoring in English.

Salgado is the writer and director of the comedy. He said he conceived the idea for this project about a year ago and has been working on it ever since.

Salgado said he constructed a situational comedy, which "peels back to reveal a lot more depth." He said his motivation came from a frustration with the comedy entertainment industry.

"I've seen too many comedies where if any character is even half-intelligent, the whole plot collapses," Salgado said. "In reality, people have a lot more going on than the silly, light weight facades they put on."

The plot begins as a blind date and takes some sharp turns, which redirect the themes to concepts such as life and spirituality, Salgado said. It is infused with pop music, underscoring the superficial opening themes.

"I like the concept of what Richard's trying to say and I think it's an important message," said Sarah Ratliff, 20, a sophomore from Little Rock, Ark., majoring in theater.

She plays the female lead, Heather, whose character is an egocentric individual dwelling only on her own relatively menial problems.

"Heather can teach us that life is good and we need to see outside the scope of our own problems," Ratliff said. "I hope the audience will leave questioning themselves and their lives."

The cast of six BYU performers has been practicing for two months.

The cast said they agree this comedy is not only entertainment, but also a learning experience shown by thought-provoking monologue.

"My character challenges us to think twice before hiding who we really are," said Dan Phelan, 21, a junior from Springville, majoring in art education.

Phelan is playing the male lead Chad. He said he hopes people will catch the message and not just enjoy the laughs.

"The Liars" — six people, countless lies, one blind date — will run Friday and Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the Varsity Theatre.

Admission is free and sponsored by the performing arts club.

11 students vie for Miss Utah

> "Miss Utah really forces a young girl to dig deep inside and find out who she is and what she stands for."
> — Rhea Kiisel, executive director, Miss Utah Pageant

Eleven BYU students will be among those competing Saturday at the Miss Utah pageant. The pageant will be at Mountain View High School.

"Miss Utah really forces a young girl to dig deep inside and find out who she is and what she stands for spiritually, mentally and physically," said Rhea Kiisel, president and executive director of the pageant. "We encourage the girls to stand by the Honor Code they sign at BYU and not to compromise their standards."

The Miss Utah pageant is preliminary to the Miss America Pageant, a not-for-profit corporation established to provide young women with the opportunity to enhance their professional and educational goals, Kiisel said.

"The Miss Utah Pageant stands for women of integrity and service," she said.

Some women have said they decided to compete for Miss Utah for personal growth and to further their education with scholarship money, said Joanna Larson, press relations for Miss Utah.

The current Miss Utah, Jaclyn Hunt, has had more than 700 appearances during her reign and has won more than $39,000 in scholarships.

She is a senior majoring in English at BYU and plans on earning a master's degree in English.

"I thought Miss Utah would be all about autograph signings, parades and ribbon cuttings," Hunt said. "Now I can look back and see the difference Miss Utah can make with the service she is able to perform in changing many people's lives."

When Hunt first competed for Miss Lehi, she said she did not think Miss Utah was possible.

"I never imagined myself as being Miss Utah until the crown was placed on my head a year ago," she said.

'Seven Brides' returns to the Scera

By Amy Allen

NewsNet Staff Writer

Utah Valley will live up to its reputation as the valley of multiple wives Friday, but not by virtue of polygamy. "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers" will open at the SCERA Shell Outdoor Theatre Friday night.

"This show was a real favorite when we did it at the Shell ten years ago," said Jerry Ellison, the show's director. "It's been a decade since SCERA's done the show and to steal some jargon from the backwoods, we've been 'hankerin' to do it again."

Ellison said he's excited with the quality of people who tried out for the musical.

"We had so many people audition who could fill the parts perfectly," Ellison said. "It was easy to cast everyone."

Allyson Evalson, 21, a senior in vocal performance from Portland, Ore., will play the lead part, Millie.

Evalson said the show is ideal for a fun date.

"The play is outside, so you can sit under the stars with your date," said Evalson. "But it is also a fun play that almost everyone will enjoy."

Fred Lee, 21, a sophomore from Orem at UVSC in secondary education, said "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers" is one of the best plays to see outside because most of the scenes take place outside.

"In the outdoor theater you get the country feeling that just wouldn't have the same effect with other plays," Lee said. "We won't only use the stage for this musical, we will come off the stage and use the hill for some of it."

Lee, who plays the part of Gideon, the seventh brother in the musical, also said the performance begs for audience participation.

"I think the audience will find themselves tapping their toes with the music during many of the dance numbers," Lee said. "The dance scenes are difficult and some of the most complex I have done."

"Seven Brides for Seven Brothers" focuses on seven bachelor brothers in the 1850's Oregon Wilderness.

The musical opens Friday at 8 p.m. and continues though June 24 with daily performances except Sundays and Tuesdays.

Tickets are available at the Shell box office one hour before the show on performance nights. They are available in advance at the main office of the SCERA, 745 South State Street in Orem, or by calling (801) 225-2569 or 225-ARTS.

General admission is $9 for adults, and $5 for children (ages 3-11).

Audience members may also bring blankets or rent a chair from the theater for $1.

Actors portray a scene from "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers" at a preview Tuesday. The musical will return to the SCERA Shell Outdoor Theatere tomorrow after a 10-year absence.

BYU softball coach Mary Kay Amicone announced she is stepping down late Tuesday. She compiled a 81-76 record in three seasons with the Cougars.

ter three years at the helm of U's softball team, Mary Kay icone announced late Tuesday she is stepping down.

ae decision, effective immedi-y, came is a result of differ-es between the coach and U's administration.

Coach Amicone has worked l to establish BYU's softball gram," Elaine Michaels, BYU ector of women's athletics, in a news release. "However, e are issues regarding her dership style that we have n unable to resolve for some . We appreciate the work she done and wish her the best."

micone has led the softball m since its birth in 1999. In three years with the team, she mpiled an 81-76 record, uding a Mountain West Con-nce championship and a trip he NCAA tournament last .

e was named the 2001 MWC ch of the Year for her team's ess.

am proud of the softball pro-n we have built at BYU," icone said. "I have enjoyed king with the student athletes ny team and wish them the ."

spite her achievements, Ami-e cited a conflict in coaching osophy as her reason for leavegretfully, the philosophical rences between the adminis-on and me are too great for to continue coaching at ," she said.

cording to team members, cone's decision doesn't come shock.

here have been problems the year," Katy Barnes, freshman first baseman, said. "I think we all knew there was something coming, we just didn't know what. Her decision isn't really a surprise."

With only three players graduating and the rest expected to return next year, the team will remain relatively stable compared to the previous year, which saw the loss of nine graduating seniors.

"Next year's still going to be a good year," Barnes said. "I think that losing Coach Amicone is a loss to our program, but we're going to move on. I'm sad for us, but I'm happy for her because she's doing what she feels is best for her."

Before coming to BYU, Amicone already had six years of Division I experience as an assistant coach at Utah.

She also worked at the high school level, coaching Riverton's Bingham High from 1995 to 1998.

The Cougars will immediately start searching for a new coach.

Lakers finish off Nets, Shaq gets MVP honors

Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Shaq got his three-peat, too.

Shaquille O'Neal, cementing his reputation as one of the most dominating players ever, won his third straight NBA Finals MVP award Wednesday night as the Los Angeles Lakers completed a sweep of the New Jersey Nets.

Just as he did in the last two Finals, O'Neal thoroughly controlled the inside, only this time he did so despite a painful arthritic right big toe — an ailment that bothered him all season.

O'Neal, who had 34 points and 10 rebounds in the Lakers' series-closing 113-107 victory over the Nets, averaged 36.3 points and 12.3 rebounds in the four games.

"He's a monster," Nets coach Byron Scott said midway through the Finals.

O'Neal did most of his damage in the first three quarters in Game 4 with 28 points and eight rebounds.

In the final period, with the Nets surrounding him, he mostly deferred to his teammates.

O'Neal scored his first point of the fourth quarter with 5 1/2 minutes left when rookie Jason Collins pulled him down while Derek Fisher was making a jumper.

O'Neal's foul shot completed a three-point play and gave the Lakers a 98-93 lead.

He would add another pair of free throws before hitting a turnaround jumper in the lane for a 108-99 lead with 1:24 to play.

Game, and series, over.

O'Neal made his first four shots — none of them dunks — instead using his quickness and agility to get shots from close range against the smaller New Jersey defenders.

As the game went on, the Nets double-teamed O'Neal more, and he used his deft passing ability to find open teammates.

The Lakers became the fifth team to win as many as three straight championships, and with the 30-year-old O'Neal and 23-year-old Kobe Bryant under contract for four and three seasons, respectively, they figure as favorites for years to come.

"He's one of the five greatest centers of all time," said Hall of Famer Bill Walton, now a commentator for NBC, naming Bill Russell, Wilt Chamberlain, Abdul-Jabbar and Olajuwon as the others.

"These last five games, I've never seen him play better," Walton said before Game 4.

Despite his sore toe, O'Neal scored 41 and 35 points in the last two games of the Western Conference finals, when the Lakers scored tight victories over Sacramento, and 36, 40 and 35 points against the Nets in the first three games of the NBA Finals.

He hadn't been anywhere near his usual dominating self except in spurts for quite some time until the final two games of the conference finals — when the Lakers needed it the most.

And that's the way it went against the Nets.

60% TEXTBOOK BUYBACK!

A lower national wholesale price may be offered for textbooks not needed at BYU.

Wednesday, June 19th thru Friday, June 21st prices are rounded to the nearest dollar.

THE BUYBACK STORY:

1. We are buying back books which instructors have requested as texts for future semesters.
2. We buy back books that are on our list at 60% of the new (not used) price.
3. We resell our used books at 75% of the new price.
4. The books must be the current edition, the correct volume, number, in good condition, etc.
5. If any of your books are not on our list, the reasons are as follows:
   A. We have not received a written request from the faculty for future class room use.
   B. It is an old edition, programmed text, etc.
   C. In a very few cases, we're overstocked and cannot send the overstock back to the publisher.
   D. We have bought back the maximum limit based on what the instructors have submitted as their classroom enrollment.

- Most stores pay no more than 50% of what you paid for the book. We are one of the few that offer you 60% of the current new price.
- The Nebraska Book Company will make you an offer on most of the books that we cannot buy back. The price they offer depends on the national resale market.
- We at the Bookstore understand the frustrations of exam week and have made an extra effort to buy back as many books as possible.

Runners to blaze trails at Saturday races

By Laura Sanderson
sand_or_sun@hotmail.com
NewsNet Staff Writer

The race is on for Provo runners.

Saturday will provide two more opportunities for local athletes to strut their stuff.

The Provo River Trail Run consists of 10 downhill miles. Winding through South Fork Canyon, the run is more scenic than it is challenging, said race director Curt Catmull.

"This race is all about having a good time," he said. "It's been voted the funnest run of the summer."

The majority of last year's 700 participants were BYU students. From novice to veteran, all runners finished with a smile on their face, Catmull said.

A blues band will also perform at the after party, at the Shops at Riverwoods.

Interested runners may register at www.trailrun.com. For $25, participants receive a bus ride up the canyon, a spot in the race, and refreshments at the run's end.

More adventurous athletes might be interested in the Wasatch Steeplechase. The rigorous course includes a vertical gain and loss of approximately 9,000 feet in 17 miles.

Shaky terrain, poisonous snakes and unruly sagebrush add flavor to the rocky run, said race administrator Butch Adams.

The first part of the course favors an uphill runner, but the second half is downhill.

"Two-and-a-half miles of quad-burning, gut-wrenching, knee-breaking downhill on an overgrown, root-infested single-track trail," reads the race's Web site.

The steeplechase will be held at Memory Grove Park in Salt Lake City.

Women run along the Provo River Trail. The Provo River Trail Run, a 10 mile race, will take place Saturday.

Visitor center opens in NY

By Matthew Christensen
matthew@newsroom.byu.edu
NewsNet Staff Writer

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints is opening a new visitor center in Palmyra, N.Y., in commemoration of the 65th anniversary of the Hill Cumorah Pageant.

"The Hill Cumorah Pageant started in 1937 and has gotten better and better every year," said Scott Trotter, New York City public affairs director for The Church of Jesus Christ.

Dick Ahern, publicity and public affairs director for the pageant, said he has been told that the new visitor center is a smaller scale version of the new Salt Lake City church visitor center.

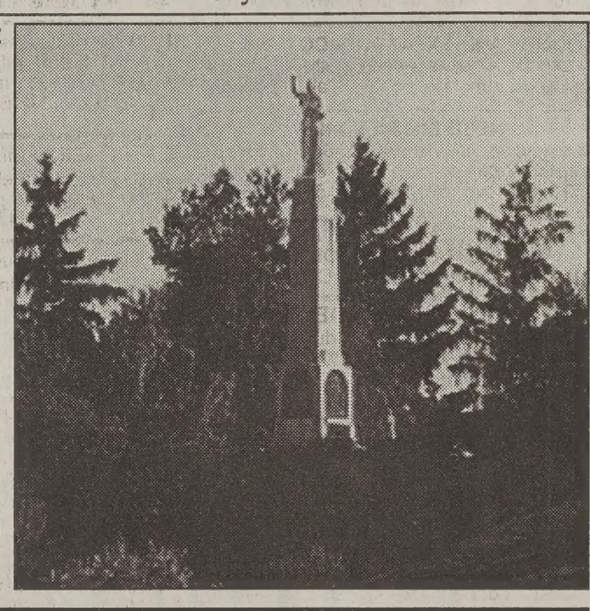
Ahern said the Palmyra visitor center will have similar features to the new visitor center in Salt Lake City.

"There will be push-screen computer displays for the first vision and the organization of the church, with film for all of it," Ahern said.

He said the interior of the visitor center is all dark wood with green marble floors in some places.

Ahern described the visitor center as a two-story glass structure with a dome on top.

He said it also has a two-tiered marble platform with a Christus statue standing on top that was made specifically for the Palmyra visitor center.



This is the site of the Hill Cumorah Pageant in Palmyra, New York. The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints will open a new visitor center in Palmyra this year.

to talk to him," Louis said. "He's not suspicious."

In early May, Edmunds was stopped by a West Valley City police officer for having an improper car registration, said Assistant Police Chief Craig Gibson. When the officer asked for Edmunds' license and registration, Edmunds allegedly picked up a can of pepper spray, sprayed the officer and sped off. Pursing officers lost the suspect, he said.

"It's a gentleman, even if he had nothing to do with the abduction, we'd like to get him off the street," Gibson said.

Edmunds also has been charged with burglary and forgery in Sanpete County, court records show. Edmund's probation officer didn't immediately return a message, and the disposition of those cases was unclear.

Elizabeth was taken from her million-dollar home in the early morning hours last Wednesday, police said.

On Tuesday, Salt Lake City Police Chief Rick Dinse said the investigation was looking at those who had access to the neighborhood or the house, although not necessarily a family member. He said they have received some promising leads in the case.

Officials from the Utah Department of Corrections have given police a list of dozens of names of known sex offenders on probation or parole, but nearly all of them have been cleared, said Jack Ford, an agency spokesman.

Ford said the list included sex offenders know to have broken into homes or who have targeted young girls.

Elizabeth's 9-year-old sister, who witnessed the abduction, described the kidnapper as a 5-foot 8-inch man. Edmunds is 6-foot 2-inches tall and 235 pounds.

Police have received thousands of leads and re-interviewed 9-year-old Mary Katherine Smart. The girl had told investigators that a gunman came the bedroom she shared with her older sister and forced her to go with him.

She said he told her that her sister would be hurt if she told anyone. Police said it was at least two hours before she woke her parents and told them.

The volunteer search through the city and mountain foothills was tapering off. On the first day of the search, 1,200 people volunteered to find Elizabeth.

Library exhibition explores history of Yellowstone Park

An inside look at Yellowstone National Park is now on display in the library.

"Yellowstone: An American Wonderland," is an exhibition of photographs, books, manuscripts and maps of Yellowstone National Park from the A. Dean and Jean Larsen Yellowstone Collection.

"This is one of the finest of all collections in the world," said Russ Taylor, supervisor of reference services in the L. Tom Perry Special Collections, and curator of the exhibit.

Taylor estimates that A. Dean and Jean Larsen visited Yellowstone 70 times during Larsen's life.

Taylor said friends of Larsen say, "You haven't been to Yellowstone unless you've been with Dean."

The Larsens have spent more than 40 years selecting the items in the collection by hand, said Cali O'Connell, administrative assistant at the Harold B. Lee Library.

The oldest item in the collection is a one-of-a-kind map created around 1843 by fur trapper Warren Angus Ferris.

The collection contains photographs dating back to 1872, when Yellowstone became the first National Park.

A unique photo in the collection is of President Teddy Roosevelt, who visited Yellowstone and traveled through the park on a horse.

"A private collection is nice, but because of their generosity, this unique collection is now available to thousands of students, faculty and community members to enjoy," O'Connell said.

The exhibit opens today and runs through Sept. 14 in the Harold B. Lee Library, L. Tom Perry Special Collections.

Florida sinkhole forces evacuation of apartments

Associated Press

ORLANDO, Fla. — An 150-foot-wide sinkhole swallowed trees, pipelines and a sidewalk and forced the evacuation of two buildings in an apartment complex.

The 60-foot-deep opening could grow Wednesday afternoon if rain falls and destablizes the ground, engineers said.

"That's the worst thing that could happen," geotechnical engineer Mark Canty said.

"If it rains, there's the potential for (the hole) to start moving again."

About 60 residents of the Woodhill Apartments have been forced out of their homes.

Twenty-one buildings cirle the area where the sinkhole formed, and trees, park benches, underground pipelines and a sidewalk have fallen in.

The hole reached within six feet of one building's stairway.

Residents were moved into empty units around the complex, and spent Tuesday night into the morning removing their belongings.

"We didn't get finished until 3 a.m.," resident Kamal Khan said.

Khan's wife, Sabeela, was cooking dinner on Tuesday afternoon when a worker at the complex banged on her door and ordered her to leave immediately.

"It was pretty scary because it was just sucking everything up," she said.

It was central Florida's second large sinkhole in recent weeks.

On May 29, a 10-foot-deep, 15-foot-wide sinkhole collapsed part of Interstate 4 in Lake Mary, about 15 miles north of Orlando.

Sinkholes occur when sand beneath the surface begins to erode and falls into underlying limestone cavities, causing the surface to collapse.

Several factors may contribute to the collapse, including drought, excessive water pumping, traffic or construction.

Heavy rains also may cause sinkholes by raising the water table and soaking and weakening the top layer from beneath.
